An Eccentric Man's Burial.

A DISPATCH Sunday from Cynthiana to the Enquirer said: "A queer buri 1 was that in the little country churc's yard at Kentontown this afternoon, when all that was mortal of Charles Bramblette, one of Robertson County's oldest, wealthiest and most eccentric citizens, was laid to rest. Several years ago Mr. Bramblette, at an expense of $960, had a coffin hown out of an inmense rock, in which he proposed to be buried. During the same time he kept in the cellar a barrel of pure Bourbon whisky, which he requested should be poured over his remains after they were placed in the sarcophagus. He wanted to be dressed in the finest silk, and expressed his determination to prove that the idea of dust to dust and ashes to ashes was a back number. He was 80 years old."

COMMODORE SINKS.

The Ship, it is Alleged, Was Scuttled and the Pumps Deranged by a Traitor—The Commodore Was Loaded With Arms and Ammunition for Cubans.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 4.—The filibustering steamer Commodore, which left Jacksonville, Fla., Friday evening, was sunk off New Smyrna bar at 2:30 o'elock Saturdaymorning, earrying its precious cargo of arms, etc., for the Cuban army to the bottom, 20 fathoms

The consignment consisted of 203,000 300 machetes, 14 cases of drugs, 4 bundles of clothes, valued at $44,465. Not an article was saved.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 4.—All of the crew of the Commodore were not saved as reported Saturday night. Twelve are in Jacksonville, three alive and one dead at Daytona. Four are reported to have arrived near Armond, but the report has not been confirmed, and eight are at sea on a life raft.

Capt. Murphy, Stephen Crane, the novelist, C. B. Montgomery, the eook, and Wm. Higgins, a stoker, landed at Daytona Sunday morning. Their boat was turned over in the surf, and Higgins received a wound which caused his death soon after getting ashore. The party on the raft are all Cubans. They left the boat before Capt. Murphy's party and nothing more has been heard of them.

ROYAL DECREE,

Signed by the Queen Regent, Guaranteeing Reforms in the System of Government in Porto Rico.

MADRID, Jan. 2.—In the council of ministers, presided over Friday by her majesty, the queen regent, a royal decree was signed which apply to the island of Porto Rico the laws of reforms, voted in the cortes on the 15th of March, 1895.

The preamble to this decree is of the greatest importance, because of the statements it contains regarding Cuba. It begins by explaining the reasons' why the reforms are applied to-day and wherefore this has not been done On Tuesday and Wednesday the before. Amongst other paragraphs it contains the following: In the actual eireumstances the government considers that the proper time has arrived for giving to the Rico the reform of the system of government and civil administration. voted by the cortes and sanctioned by her majesty, and which, conveniently enlarged and extended, will be applied in due time to Cuba.

with that serupulous care which the complex nature of the case and its many and varied problems demand. the undersigned minister has been inspired with a sense of the needssity of ample administrative decentralization, and has proceeded to the utmost limit, which the actual law allows without dimunition of the inherent sovereignty of the nation. At the same time, true more ample scope to the reforms when, as a herald of peace, the happy moment arrives for the definite application of the reforms to both the Antilles. As soon as possible her majesty's govern ment will hasten to apply to Cuba, not upon both Antilles an administrative and economie personality of a local character, which shall facilitate the complete intervention of the country in its own affairs, maintaining, at the same time, intact, the right of sovereignty and the conditions necessary to the maintenance of that right, as was stated in the words her majesty deigned to address to the cortes by the advice of her responsible government upon the opening of parliament. Briefly the law of reforms voted by the cortes and sanctioned by the crown. which is to-day to be applied to Portc Rico, will form the foundation stone of the new regime; but an additional decree, account of which will be given to the cortes, will amplify to such an extent these reforms that a genuine home administration will be constituted in our Antilles in the first instance for Cuba, but to be extended to Porto Rico as soon, and at the same time as it may be possible to apply to the former island. CHAPTER XVI.—CONTINUED. On Monday morning as he came in by train, his eye caught a flaming poster on one of the bill boards at the station. It was headed Financial Field, and the ealled a newsboy to him and bought a copy of the paper. There, in leaded type, was the article before him. It seemed, somehow, much more important on the printed page than it had moment we get into the law courts looked on the proof.

He chught his breath as he saw his own name in print. It was a shock for which he was not prepared, as he had not noticed it in the proof. Then he read on. It seemed that this man, Kenyon, had secured the mine at something like £10,-000, and was trying to shove it off on the unfortunate British public at the enormous increase of £200,000; but this nefarious attempt would doubtless be frustrated so long as there were papers of the integrity of the Financial Field

The article possessed a singular fascination for Kenyon. He read and reread it in a dazed way as if the statement referred to some other person, and he could not help feeling sorry for that person.

He asked if anybody had been in that morning, and was told that there had been no callers. Then he passed into the directors' room, closed the door behind him, sat down on a chair and leaned his head on his hands with his elbows on the table. In this position Wentworth found him some time later, and when John looked up his face was haggard and aged.

"Ah! I see you have read it." "Yes."

"Do you think Longworth is at the bottom of that article?" John shook his head. "Oh, no!" he said; "he had nothing whatever to do with it."

"What good will that do?" "What good will it do! Do you mean to say that you intend to sit here under such an imputation as they have cast upon you and do nothing? What good will it do? It will do all the good in the world."

"We cannot form our company and sue the paper at the same time. All toward the matter we have in hand."

"But, my dear John, don't you see the effect of that article? How can we form our company if such a lie remains unchallenged? Nobody will look at our proposals. Every one will say: 'What have you done about the article that appeared in the Financial Field?' If we say we have done nothing, then, of course, the natural inference is that scheme is a fraud."

"I have always thought," said John, "that the capitalization is too high." "Really, I believe you think that article is not so unfair after all. John, I am astonished at you!"

Before John could reply there was a knock at the door, and the clerk entered with a letter in his hand which had just come in. Kenyon tore it open, read it, and then tossed it across the table to Wentworth. Wentworth saw the name of their firm of solicitors at the top of the letter paper. Then he read:

DEAR SIR: You have doubtless the article in the Financial Field of this morning referring to the Canadian Mica Mining company. We should be pleased to know what action you intend to take in the mater. We may say that, in justice to our reputation, we can no longer represent your company unless a suit is brought against the paper which contains the article. W. HAWK. Yours truly,

At that hour John had his statement concluded. The first man in was Long worth, who read it with approval, merely suggesting a change here and there, which was duly made. Then he put the communication into an envelope and sent it to the editor of the opposition paper. Wentworth came in next, then Melville, then Mr. King. After this they all adjourned to the directors' room, and in a few minutes the others were present.

Kenyon, like many men of worth and not of words, was a very poor speaker. He seemed confused, and was often a lit. tle obscure in his remarks, but he was listened to with great attention by those present. He was helped here and there by a judicious question from young Longworth, and when he sat down the impression was not so bad as might have been expected. After a moment's silence it was Mr. King who spoke.

"As I take it," he said, "all we wish to know is this: Is the mine what it is represented to be? Is the mineral the best for the use Mr. Kenyon has indicated? Is there a sufficient quantity of that mineral in the mountain he speaks of to make it worth while to organize this company? It seems to me that this ean only be answered by some practical man going out there and seeing the mine for himself. Mr. Melville is, I understand, a practical man. If he has the time to spare, I would propose that he should go to America, see this mine and report."

There are some men and some women who are sentimental enough to have their hearts quite touched by the very sight of a young couple overflowing with tenderness and pride and solicitude over their first born. Those to whom this not uncommon spectacle appeals are apt to be middle-aged or cldcrly men and women, whose own youth has long been only a memory. But if they have lived honestly and truly it is a pleasant memory, and the sight of a young couple and their first baby gives rise to some of the sweetest memories of their lives.

They recall the time when life was all hopes and all harmonies to them, and the coming of their first little one gave them new hopes and sweeter harmonies. The little one is a man now, perhaps, with children of his own, but you can remember just how he looked in his swaddling elothes, and just how you felt when you first appeared in public with him in your arms. You don't talk much about it now, because you don't want to be thought "silly" or "sentimental," but if you are the man or the woman you ought to be you will have taught your children that God can give them no higher proof of His favor than to give them little ones of their own.—Detroit Free Press.

BUTTER THAT BRITON USES. Figures Showing What Nations Send the Adulterated Article.

In a communication recently received from the British board of agriculture by Acting Secretary of Agriculture Dabney, a return is made of samples of imported butter analyzed under the direction of the board from May, 1895, to February, 1896, inclusive. The total number of samples so analyzed was 995, representing the products of 12 different countries. The countries in whose products adulterated specimens were found are as follows: Belgium, 5 samples; 1 adulterated; Denmark, 182 samples, 8 adulterated; Germany, 154 samples, 43 adulterated; Holland. 250 samples, 66 adulterated; Norway and Sweden, 109 samples, 2 adulterated; Russia, 49 samples, 5 adulterated. The countries contributing samples among which no adulterated specimens were found are: Argentina, 4 samples; Austria, 57; Canada, 39; France, 62; New Zealand, 21; United States, 63.

In regard to the adulterated products the noteworthy points are the tremendous proportion of specimens, over 34 per cent. from Germany; the large proportion, numbering over 25 per cent. eontributed from Holland, and the fact that Denmark, by far the largest eontributor of foreign butter products to the British market, and enjoying hitherto an almost irreproachable reputation in the butter market, should have contributed on a total of 182 specimens, 8 adulterated, or nearly 5 per cent. In regard to the other countries the presence of the Argentina in the English butter market, even though no doubt to a limited extent, is worthy of note.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

What Was in His Head. Tommy, a pupil of a primary school, though almost an innocent, took to the oral lesson in physiology because it was illustrated from a large chart. His teacher tells that one day she, thinking he had learned one physiological fact. attempted to show him off. One Friday our lesson concerned the head and brain. Knowing Tommy's love for the pictures, I placed him where he could get a good view of the chart, and tried long and hard to impress upon him that his head contained his brain. I really thought that at last I had made an impression and saw a gleam of intelligence on his dull little face. At that moment the superintendent happened to make a eall, and thinking I had accomplished wonders (Tommy's fame having reached him) I called on Thomas to tell where his brain was. He gave me a blank look and remained silent. tried again, and put the question in another form. "Now, Tommy," I said, "tell Mr. M. what is in your head." "I suppose," said another, "that in was my last attempt to show Tommy case of delay there would be no trouble off in public.—Chicago Times-Herald.

W. O. HINTON, Agent, MILLER & COLLINS, Agents, PARIS. KENTUCKY.

> This is a smooth fence that will turn any kind of stock. It is made from the best hard steel drawn specially for the purpose.

> HOW IT IS MADE. The large steel wires forming the horizontal bars are first coiled around a inch rod, thus practically becoming COILED SPRINGS their entire length. These are securely tied together by 16 cross bars to the rod. The cross bars are best quality of annealed wire (galyanized), wrapped three times around each horizontal bar.

THREE POSTS to the 100 FEET.

Economy is not our sole object in usual distance of 20 to 30 feet apart. Farmers say, "the closer the posts the better the fence." That may apply to common fences, but depending largely on its elasticity we PREFER the long panel. For cemeteries, lawns, yards, etc., they should of course be nearer, 12 to 20 feet is not objectionable.

We have completed (and are nowbuilding) a lot of this fence for Bourbon. farmers and you can examine into its merits for yourself.

Estimates cheerfully furnished. You may put up the posts and we will build the fence, or we will contract to do the whole job. If you are needing any fence, see us. We will save you money and still-build you the best fence made.

MILLER & COLLINS, PARIS, KY,

The Page Wire Fence In Bourbon.

MILLERSBURG, KY., May 4, '96. MESSRS. MILLER & COLLINS. Agents,

Paris, Kentucky. Gentlemen:—I have had the Page Woven Wire Fence on my farm for about eighteen months and am well pleased with it. It has proved to be all that is claimed for it. It turns all kinds of stock and is as tight as it was the day it was put up and has stood some severe tests. A horse of one of my neighbors fell across the fence a few months ago and was not taken off for several hours but when taken off the fence went back to its place all right with the exception of a few staples. During the storm of April 24th a good-sized tree was blown across the fence and bent it down to the ground. As soon as the tree was cast off the fence went up all right and was as good as ever with the exception of one broken wire and a few staples out

I am so well pleased with the fence that I am going to put up more of it Respectfully, right away. WM. BECRAFT. (5my-tf) is made up of the most essential elements that go to nourish the body. Where the appetite is varying or lacking, it increases it, and where digestion is weak, it aids it to perform its function in a more vigorous way. It enriches the blood, makes healthy flesh and cures chronic coughs and colds by making it possible for the body to resist disease. Our friends tell us "IT WORKS WONDERS" but we never like to over-state the merits of our remedy even when it has been tested and tried for overtwenty-five years. Turnpike News.

THE East Union & Rogers Mills and the Hopewell & Bethlehem turnpikes were deeded yesterday to the county.

An estimate made of the cost of macadamizing turnpikes with the new road-building machinery is extremely favorable. The former cost per rod was from $7.50 to $9, but under the new system it costs only $4.50 per rod. The estimate is made from the expense incurred in macadamizing a piece of road near Elizabeth.

On February court-day, the County Court will offer at public sale about seventeen toll-houses that are situated Two of W. F. Talbott's children are on the various pikes recently acquired by the County. In some instances the houses only belong to the county, the ground which they occupy reverting to the owners of adjoining lands. Where the ground is sold the owner of adjoining land will have the privilege of buying the land at the price at which it is knocked down, if he so desires.

SAVED BY A PHANTOM.

BY LAURA B. MARSH.

EISURELY the two strolled along on outskirts of that little New Mexican village, she, half-hidden under a drooping leghorn sunshade; he, in a wealth of outing flannel, his blouse coat carelessly unbuttoned, swinging her big bouquet of purple jimpsons back and forth, as he talked everything else but sermons and the Methodism at that moment being expounded in the village church.

"Too warm for that doctrine this morning," he said. "We'll just try a little theology of our own, up there under the 'devil's pulpit,' " pointing to a huge pile of rocks near town, thrown together like a big black platform.

He turned his merry dark eyes upon the sunshade as he quoted:

" 'Wherever God erects a house of prayer,

The devil always builds a chapel there." "We're in a dangerous way, then," she replied, in grave alarm. "They might count us in."

In a few minutes Langford was at her side again, a little out of breath from haste. His face was flushed, too, as he said, laughingly:

"Think so? Well, go on with your sermon," as they reached a shady place ican, Garcia, in your presence, about under the very droppings of the great pulpit. "I don't mind it in a cool retreat like this, with plenty of room to stretch myself," and Fred Langford pushed his hat back from his forehead in a boyish way, and felt for his handkerchief. "There, another handkerchief gone! If I lose one I lose 50 a year. But say, go on with your little preach. made so bad a matter of it, when she I rather like to hear you."

Her unhappiness and discomfiture were complete when she was subpoenaed as a witness for the prosecution.

Ah, me, in the presence of that Mexican jury all those innocent words, the reekless fun, were like stones around Langford's neck, and the penitentiary, if nothing worse, yawned before him.

Kate had not seen him since his arrest; and now, as she looked into his pale faee-into his sad, dark eyes, so different from the merry ones she had parted with-she eould have eried out "Oh. never. Langford was innocent, of course. Then some one else was guilty, she reasoned, and she had never forgotten eia's eyes. Nobody else saw it, however, and nobody took any interest in her wild words. She must work out her problem alone, and she began with her Spanish grammar. Her Spanish studies took her into the Mexican quarter, and long and earnestly she strove to get a foothold in the man Gareia's house, but without success; and the way he looked at her sometimes made her heart afraid.

One day, in her little room, she sank down discouraged, and began thinking fast and hard. There was one last thing she could do, but it was a very difficult thing indeed.

"I fear I am a poor detective," she said, sadly; "but I ean be brave and faithful, anyway."

The next moment she started up, her book under her arm, and was off for the Spanish quarter.

"If I suceeed," she was saying, to herself, "Brother Ben will help me; I know

The little old cemetery was just at the edge of the village, and surrounded by a high adobe wall. It was almost exactly the time when the village clocks were striking 12 that halting, uneven steps were heard along the hard adobe walk leading to this humble God's acre. Then, as they came nearer, a protesting voice, now refusing to go any farther, now raised in agonized entreaty. It was Jose Martinez, then, who said, firmly, unpityingly, that he eertainly would go farther, even down that very lane to the graveyard. Next, there were sounds of scuffling, as if Jose might be carrying out his intention with difficulty. It was just as they reached the side of the burying ground opposite poor old Sandoval's new-made grave that they hesitated. Everything was déathly still, but each man could have sworn that he saw something beside the long rows of white and black erosses within, and Jose himself was not proof against any moving thing in a cemetery at that hour. He had no taste for seeing "graveyards yawn." He stopped stock still, letting go his victim. The latter had every inclination to run, and, indeed, started, but at that very moment an awful white apparition appeared above the wall, and his knees pet. gave way beneath him. He sank down trembling, crossing himself, muttering: "Ah, Dios!" "Jesu Christi!" in the most abject supplication. The figure leaned toward him. BARRELED FLIES.

Prepared Insect Food for Birds and Other

Pets. If you are the owner of a moeking bird or a gold fish or a chameleon, which you wear chained to your manly or womanly, but erratic, bosom, much to the consternation of your nerve-racked friends, you have probably had occasion to call on J. H. Wehrmann, "the old bird man," on South Sixth street, for the purpose of buying food for your

When you got there he probably of fered you your choice of either dried flies or ants' eggs, in quantities to suit the size of your purse or the stomachic capacity of the said pet.

You may have been startled the first time at these efforts, but if you were curious enough to inquire you learned that both are very common articles of diet for imprisoned birds and reptiles, and that they are imported to this country by the barrel.

The flies are obtained from Mexico. They live in the swamps in various seetions of the country and the individual insect is called the moseos. It is small and delicate-much more delicate than the omnivorous scavenger, the common house fly—and its whole body has the appearance of having been gilded. In life it must be beautiful. It is perfectly harmless. The flies swarm by the thousands and millions and are captured in silken nets by men who make it their business. Great quantities of them are "eured" or dried in the City of Mexico and other towns further east. Most of them that are shipped to the United States come through Laredo, Tex. They are packed and sold by the barrel.

Mr. Wehrmann usually buys them in ten-barrel lots and retails them in small quantities. You can get a large envelope about half full for ten eents, and from this you can judge that a barrelful of them must cost a pretty penny.

The ants' eggs are brought from Germany, mainly from a point near Hamburg. In the Black forest lives a monster ant, and the eggs are deposited in the ground in such numbers that when a nest is uncovered it is just like digging into a wheat bin where the egg hunters commence work with their

After being dried they are packed in barrels and shipped to the different parts of the world by the firms engaged in the business. The supply for this country is distributed through New

MOHAMMEDAN MOSQUE.

Followers of the Prophet to Have a School in This Country.

A project is on foot to build in New York city a Mohammedan mosque or school, to provide a place of worship for the few followers of the prophet and the other tract commonly known there, and a religious school where s he "Marston Farm," is described as Arabian youth may learn all that is valuable in western civilization without being led away from the teachings of Islam.

The Eedm Oriental society, an influential Arabian religious and benevolent association, with headquarters in (1 36-100) poles to a stone corner to Morocco, is pushing the project, and sad Current and John McIlvaine; has named Hassan Ben Ali, of 531 Sixth avenue, as its agent. Some New Results. Prof. John Trowbridge, of Harvard, in his special laboratory in the Jefferson physical laboratory building, has found that with the power of 10,000 volts the X rays are just visible and diminished. This is absolutely the first definite characteristic of the rays that has been accurately ascertained.

After careful investigation of the paniments Prof. Trowbridge has come to the knowledge that the old theory regarding the passage of light of the arc lights is entirely misunderstood.

PRIVATE FREIGHT CARS

A Great Variety on the Railroads of the

Every large shipper in these days must have his own private freight cars, and the wonderful growth of the special car idea can be demonstrated any day by watching a through freight train. It is dollars to cents that there will be anywhere from one to a dozen special cars in the string, and the purposes they serve are as varied as their ownership. The dressed meat refrigerators are now so well known as to excite no interest, unless it be in the vague conjecture as to how many millions of dollars are tied up therein, for the number of these traveling ice boxes is legion. Directly the opposite of the refrigerators are the heater ears, cleverly contrived to keep the contents at a fixed degree of temperature throughout the trip, and therefore invalhable for shipping fruits in cold weather. The heating is done by oil stoves. There are quite a number of special fruit ear eompanies which own cars especially equipped for the carriage of fruit and produce in bulk, and these cars are divided into many classes, such as orange cars, cabbage cars, melon cars, and so on almost indefinitely. There is a pickle line, a coffee line, numberless beer lines, and, strangest of all, a chicken or poultry line, these latter cars being filled with permanent coops and feeding and watering facilities, intended for the safe handling of fowls of all kinds. There are furniture cars, buggy cars, chair stock cars, icc ears, plate glass cars, crockery ears, and, indeed, cars for almost every known commodity manufactured in sufficient quantities to make it worth while for the producers to build their own conveyances. As to live-stock cars, there are all kinds, from the palace or stable cars down to the plain everyday slatted affairs, and, unlike most of the other special vehicles, the stock cars can be used by any shipper willing to pay the owner a nominal sum for the rent of the car, over and above the usual freight charges imposed by the railroads, the advantage gained being the much better accommodations afforded by these special cars than given in the regular equipment of the railways. AN INJUSTICE.

Shortly after Mr. Boyd's return to West Point he missed sums of money brought from home, but said nothing about it. In the class with Mr. Boyd was a man who had entered West Point at the avowed age of 25, though undoubtedly much older, as his appearance indicated. During wartime the extreme of age for admission there, which before and since was and is limited to 22 years, had been extended to 25. This was done in order to permit young men who had achieved distinction in real warfare the opportunity of acquiring a military education. So this man, named Casey, had entered at the acknowledged age of 25. He was absolutely without money and belonged to an Irish family in humble circumstances, and his superior age and cunning unfitted Mr. Boyd to cope with him. Mr. Casey was compelled to procure money at all hazards. Before entering West Point he had married. That fact, if known, would have dismissed him at once from the academy, in accordance with the laws governing that institution, which permit no cadet to marry. In the academy at that time were several cadets, sons of very wealthy parents, who, contrary to West Point rules, kept in their rooms at barracks large sums of money. That was Casey's opportunity, for he had constant need of it with which to silence his wife, who had threatened his exposure.

So great was the confidence of the academy classmates in each other that the that only luxuries need be purchased. developed into suspicions, and a plan was formed to mark some of the bills and thus discover the evildoer.

Mr. Boyd, by reason of his unpopularity, was unaware of those movements, and he had told no one of his own losses. The cadets had informed their immediate commandant that money was constantly belected a committee of eight-two from each company—to find and punish the thief. In an unguarded moment the commandant had said, "If you find the offend-

The most prominent member of the committee was Casey, himself the real culprit. After a perfunctory search through quarters occupied by other cadets, they reached Mr. Boyd's and found nothing to reward their efforts. At that juncture Casey glanced upward at a pile of books lying on some shelves and said, "Let us look at that large dictionary."

Casey's room was directly opposite that occupied by Mr. Boyd, who roomed alone because of his unpopularity. Mr. Boyd's room was unguarded and accessible, so no doubt Casey had frequently entered it and taken money from the man he now publicly accused. The search took place at noon, Coasts like one. when the main body of the corporation of the country of the coun accused him of the crime. White with horror and shame unspeakable, he answered their charges in a way which would have convinced any judge of human nature that he was entirely innocent. Sinking to his knees and raising his eyes to heaven, he cried, "By the memory of my dead mother, I swear I knew nothing whatever of this money."

But the supposed culprit was in the hands of Philistines. No thought of mercy impelled them. I now quote from a published account by an eyewitness the scene later in the day: "It was a cold, sad, blusterless day. The air was full of snow, and the cold was bitter. Orders were given to fall into ranks in the area of the barracks for undress parade. The cadet adjutant commanded, 'Parade rest.' After a pause he continued, 'Cadet captains will place themselves opposite their respective company fronts and arrest any man who leaves the ranks.' There was an interval N. S. Brooks, Plaintiff, of the most profound stillness. Then above the wind's howling came the sound of tramping feet.

"Across the broad porch of the barracks and down the steps came four cadets, bearing between them a man's form. They ad- the 17th of December, 1896, I will, on vanced along the battalion's front. As they turned the adjutant raised his right hand, and forthwith the drums and fifes beat and wailed out in unmelodious and unearthly harmony the terrible tune of John Schofield established the first the 'Rogues' March.' On they came, and sell at public out-cry to the highest bidnow I saw affixed to that man's breast a der, at 2:30 p. m., on the premises, large white placard, and on it the words, that certain tract of land lying on 'Coward!'
